Software of Excellence Establishes Dedicated Conversions Team

Switching software systems need not be a huge upheaval if the company you're switching to has real expertise and experience in transferring data from one system to another.

Over the last 18 months sales of both Oasis and EXACT practice management systems in Australia and New Zealand have increased significantly with many of these new sales coming from practices who had been using competitors systems that were either poorly supported or offer no upgrade path.

In response to this significant growth in sales, Software of Excellence (the developers of both Oasis and EXACT) has had to employ 2 full time conversion specialists. These employees are experienced in the interchange of information between competitor systems and they don't just convert names and addresses, they are also increasingly able to convert clinical history, notes, digital radiograph and appointments as well as financial data.

The conversion specialists are constantly extending the range of converted data. Getting it right first time is essential, which is why Software of Excellence does not just convert the data once – it does it twice. To ensure a smooth conversion of from your old data a trial conversion is done to verify that all the data has been correctly interrupted. When this is signed off by the practice, we wait until just prior to the install date and run the final conversion and in so doing capture the most current information. Last year Software of Excellence converted data from over 8 different competitive systems for more than 40 practices.
